

KAZNAKOFF HAS BEEN RECALLED

Russia Will Send New Member of North Sea Commission.

ILL-HEALTH IS REASON GIVEN CHANGE HAS CAUSED COMMENT IN PARIS.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 29.—Admiral Kaznakoff is returning to Russia and will be replaced by Vice Admiral Doubovoff as Russian commissioner on the international commission at Paris, which is to inquire into the North Sea incident. Doubovoff starts for Paris next week.

Admiral Kaznakoff is returning because of ill health. It is said that he is determined absolutely whether he will be able to continue as a member of the commission. At the admiralty it was news of his break-down did not cause surprise. He is being treated with the greatest care. Vice Admiral Doubovoff was given an audience of the emperor just before his departure for the south. This is regarded as confirmation of the report that Doubovoff is to replace Admiral Kaznakoff on the North Sea commission. Doubovoff is eminently fitted to represent Russia in the commission. He is energetic and speaks the English and French languages fluently. It is understood that Doubovoff would have been sent to Paris in the first place, but for the fact that the emperor did not wish to spare him from the important work of the naval technical committee, and so Admiral Kaznakoff was sent. It was hoped that his health would bear the strain of the duties imposed upon him by the appointment. However, it was not long that he might break down, and for this reason his son, a young lieutenant, was detailed to accompany the admiral to Paris.

SURPRISE IN PARIS.
Admiral Kaznakoff Refused to Make a Statement.

Paris, Dec. 29.—The members of the international commission on the North Sea incident were surprised today to hear that Admiral Kaznakoff, the Russian member, had refused to make a statement that a change was contemplated had been communicated to the commission. The dispatch from St. Petersburg announcing the change was laid before Admiral Kaznakoff tonight by the Associated Press, with a request for a statement. The admiral returned the answer that he must decline to discuss the matter. The members of his suits also refused to discuss the subject.

The retirement of Admiral Kaznakoff causes much comment here. It is conjectured that it is due to renewed naval activity in Russia. It is said that the possible dispatch of a third squadron to the far east, and the fact that the admiral and therefore his seniority over Skrydloff and Rojestvensky, commanders of the fleet, and the fact that the commission, Russia deems it not necessary that she should be represented by an officer of highest rank.

Subsequently a member of the Russian staff who was interviewed expressed surprise at Vice Admiral Doubovoff's replacing Admiral Kaznakoff. He said he had been, aware of the fact that Doubovoff was coming to Paris to confer with the French minister of marine, and therefore it was not surprising that he was sent to Paris to replace Admiral Kaznakoff. ## BOTH VESSELS TOTAL WRECKS

One Stuck in the Sand Off Cape Hatteras.

OTHER OFF FIRE ISLAND CREWS TAKEN OFF BY THE LIFE SAVERS.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 29.—After being imprisoned on the wrecked oil steamer Northeastern, nine miles off Cape Hatteras for thirty-six hours, Captain Wilder and his crew of twenty-one men were taken ashore at noon today by the crews of Klunkeet Creeds' hill and Hatteras life saving stations.

The big steamer is pounding on Diamond shoals under a terrific sea and the crew say she will be a total loss.

Life Savers Summoned.

The crew of the Creeds' hill and Klunkeet life saving stations were summoned this morning to get a boat through the heavy seas. After a three hour struggle, at 1 o'clock, three life boats were safely across the breakers and battling with the outside seas on their way to the steamer.

When the surfmen reached the wreck they were confronted with a problem of great danger and difficulty. The great danger was that the life boats were being tossed like corks on the angry sea, and the little life boats were being tossed like corks on the angry sea, and the little life boats were being tossed like corks on the angry sea.

When asked the cause of the disaster, Captain Nicholson said: "All I can say is that in a blinding snowstorm we got out of our reckoning, and the first thing I knew we hauled up on the bar while running three knots an hour."

He said he did not know why steel bolts in his cargo affected his compasses.

BLOODY TIME IS EXPECTED

General Election Will Soon Be Held in Hungary.

PARLIAMENT'S HANDS TIED WHOLE QUESTION AT ISSUE IS OBSTRUCTION.

Vienna, Dec. 29.—Count Tisza, the Hungarian premier, arrived in Vienna today and will be received in special audience by the emperor-king. It is believed that the object of Count Tisza's visit is to acquaint his majesty with the steps being taken in view of the impending dissolution of the Hungarian parliament.

Count Tisza gave the Associated Press the following statement regarding the present critical situation in Hungarian politics:

Passing Through Crisis.
"The Hungarian parliament is now passing through a crisis such as every parliament in the world has had to experience. Probably the legislature of Hungary is the best in the world. The whole question at issue is obstruction. For years past the working of the Hungarian parliament has been paralyzed by the tactics of the minority. From October, 1902, to May, 1903, the parliament at Budapest did absolutely nothing. This obstruction was only removed possibly through the standing orders of the house, which were made at a time when it was impossible to force the development of modern parliamentary conflicts. Matters finally reached a point where some radical reform was rendered absolutely necessary. If parliamentary government was to continue, hence the introduction of the so-called lex daniel, which is a provisional modification of the standing orders which would obstruct the work of the parliament. The lex daniel applied only to certain urgent measures before the parliament. It was intended to precede the introduction later in the session of the new definitive standing orders."

Proceeding Was Irregular.
The premier frankly admitted that the lex daniel was forced through the house in an irregular manner, but he contended that such a course was absolutely necessary.

Way to the election at the present moment," he continued, "is to enforce the will of the majority and to end an intolerable state of affairs under the circumstances. The only alternative left to the government is to appeal to the nation. We feel confident of obtaining a favorable verdict."

Meanwhile the opposition is preparing a vigorous campaign. One of their chief contentions is that the government is acting illegally in passing the lex daniel. When the next election cannot be held by the law, they contend, the government is forced to break its constitutional oath in consenting to dissolution under such circumstances. It is feared, therefore, that there may be some uneasy incidents when his majesty reads his speech from the throne at the end of January. Violent scenes may be anticipated during the polling. No secret ballot system exists in Hungary, the voters announcing their choice openly and publicly.

Andrassy's Attitude.
The electoral situation is rendered more acute by the fact that a number of influential members of the Liberal party, formerly in the cabinet, are now urging the government not because they approve of obstruction, but as a protest against Count Tisza's method in forcing the passage of the lex daniel and his consequent bringing about dissolution of the parliament.

The present parliamentary complications in Hungary, however, are not the only ones. In Austria, finds conditions peculiarly unfortunate at this juncture, when the dual monarchy is engaged in the negotiation of new commercial treaties requiring the attention of both the emperor-king and the Hungarian king. The last sitting of the present Hungarian parliament was held on December 29, but it will be of a purely formal character, for the purpose of being in session at the time when the king will deliver his speech from the throne at the Hofburg the next day.

BINGER HERMANN BEFORE THE GRAND JURY AT PORTLAND, ORE

Portland, Ore., Dec. 29.—Congressman Binger Hermann finished his work before the federal grand jury today and this afternoon United States Marshal W. F. Mathews, State Senator George C. Brownell, of Oregon City and former Surveyor General Henry Meldrum, now under conviction on charges of forgery, went before the jury as witnesses. It was expected that W. F. Talk, who has been in Portland for some time waiting to go before the grand jury, would be called today, but he was not among the number who entered the jury room. He was chief of the special service division of the general land office under Congressman Hermann and at the present time holds the office of principal examiner in the land office.

The present session of the grand jury will last probably about three weeks longer. Deputy District Attorney F. J. Henry has delayed his departure for Washington for another month, and will not leave here until some time in February.

George Somerson, one of those indicted Tuesday, returned to Portland today and was given until tomorrow to furnish bonds.

It is understood that S. B. Ormsby of Salem and Dr. W. H. Davis, of Albany, have obtained sureties and will file their bonds tomorrow.

MEN WITH GRIPS MAKE MERRY AT THEIR FOURTH ANNUAL BALL

The fourth annual ball of the United Commercial Travelers' union No. 1 was held at Christensen's hall last evening. Over 50 couples were in attendance and the men of the grip showed their guests that they were as good as the women of the floor as they are at talking up the wares of their houses.

The floor was decorated in the order's colors, yellow, white and blue, and then a sort of a novelty, the grips and handles of the tools were placed about the room, each with a label indicating the name of the man who represented and the class of goods sold was represented thereon.

As the grand march started, led by James B. Lewis and wife, each member of the order grabbed his grip and joined the procession and for a few seconds the guests thought the entire body had seemed a possible customer and several had breathed easier. A person, however, could have bought anything from a cake of soap to a pair of trousers, and there would have been "the best in the market" at rock bottom prices from the lines represented in that moment. The evening punch was served. Eighteen dances followed on the program. The committee in charge of the affair was D. W. McAllister, chairman; J. B. McAllister, secretary; C. P. Castle and George Goddard.

The author of this little piece is Ned Palmer, a politician and a humorist. The story runs thus: A farmer, who is supposed to be a farmer from Southern California, comes to the city and is taken to the station and locked in the city jail. The farmer is taken to the station and locked in the city jail. The farmer is taken to the station and locked in the city jail.
